Transfer Pay or Direct Express: Which Works for Your Agency?

Transfer Pay and Direct Express differ based on the amount of contracting and accounting support FEDLINK provides.

Transfer Pay is the full-service model for Books, Information Retrieval, and Serials.

Transfer Pay services include

- ~ completing requirements for request for proposals (RFPs)
- ~ conducting competitions
- ~ resolving issues with vendors
- ~ monitoring and maintaining account balances, and
- ~ invoice processing.

With Transfer Pay, your agency signs an interagency agreement with FEDLINK and funds your agency account based on price quotations from your vendors. FEDLINK charges your agency a 6.75% administrative fee to compete, order, and pay all of your agency's related invoices.

Direct Express is the self-service model for Foreign Language Learning, Information Retrieval, and OCLC.

With Direct Express, your agency's contracting official cites the FEDLINK contract number on the agency purchase order and sends it directly to the vendor. Your agency is responsible for executing all contract actions, issuing the order, and paying the invoice.

The vendor pays FEDLINK an administrative fee of 0.75% of the total sales.
